BOSTON BRAVES DEFEAT PIRATES

Twice on the Same Day by Scores of Six to One and Nine to Five.

PITTSBURGH, August 30.—Pittsburgh lost two games to the Boston Braves Tuesday, the first by a score of 6 to 1 and the second 9 to 5.

Jacobs was knocked out of the box in the second inning of the first game after the visitors had scored five runs on six hits, and Harmon finished the game. Tyler was effective throughout, holding Pittsburgh to eight scattered hits and one run. He went to the mound for the second game and up to the end of the sixth inning held the Pirates to two hits but they got four hits off him in the seventh inning, scoring two runs, and tied the score by getting two more runs in the eighth when he gave way to Hughes, who finished the game. When Kautlehnner allowed two men to reach base on hits in the ninth he was replaced by Marmann and three hits followed, five runs being scored. Score, first game:

BROOKLYN DODGERS SAY THEY'LL BE IN THE LEAD TILL FINISH

A new group picture of the Brooklyn National league team.

"The greatest thing about my boys," said Wilbert Robinson, Brooklyn manager, recently, "is their fighting spirit. It isn't the sort of fighting spirit the Braves have shown. Stallings's team have a sort of fighting spirit that may be more of a hit with the fans when they see the team on the field. The Braves tear around, roar at the umpires, protest every little play and do lots of fighting with their mouths. With my team the fighting spirit is something else."

"I think my bunch is a greater fighting team than the Braves, but in a different way. When we lose a game or two we come right back and win a bunch straight that puts us ahead of where we were before. We can fight when we most need to. This has happened not once or twice but a good dozen times through the season. And we have kept in front all the way."

"The rip-shooting, tearing, roaring sort of fighting spirit is well enough in its way and perhaps a lot better than no spirit at all, but I'd give ten times as much for the sort of spirit my team has shown. Just watch the Phillies and the Braves, our nearest competitors. When they drop a couple of games they fall away and have a hard time regaining their stride. The loss of a few games disheartens them. 'My boys come right back the next day. They have the attitude that is sure to win and that's why I'm convinced that they make the most of the best club in the league and that they're going to grab the pennant.'" most interesting and instructive series of articles of interest to all followers of college athletics. The story presents intercollegiate sport as it is. It covers every phase of the subject, fairly and dispassionately.

SOL METZER

And one of the best qualified men in college athletics is writing this series, a man whose subject is to show the good things as they are, and the fault to be remedied, all that intercollegiate sport may fulfill its purpose.

Sol Metzger, the author, known for years as a writer on intercollegiate sport, is a graduate of Phillips Andover Academy and the University of Pennsylvania, a former track athlete, football captain and coach of the last championship team Pennsylvania boasts of—that of 1908. Mr. Metzger also managed the Pennsylvania crew and last year was coach of the West Virginia University eleven, which won the championship of that state. This fall he is coach of the Washington and Jefferson team. He has acted in this capacity for West and South and has studied intercollegiate sport in over one hundred institutions. He is eminently fitted to cover this subject.

The series will begin next Sunday, September 3. Following the introduction come ten articles on the modern game of football, written with the spectator in mind as well as the player and coach. In these, one object is to present the purpose and strategy of the game to the average reader. Hence, the systems of the leading eleven will be discussed. Another object is to place the various details of play and the systems at the disposal of the football student.

Following the football season the story will deal with every phase of college and intercollegiate sport. It will discuss its problems and the various views of them, the outlook in different branches of sport and the reviews of its leading features. Mr. Metzger will visit schools and colleges, from time to time in order to write from an intimate, human interest standpoint.

In the Wake of the News

By Ring W. Lardner.

"ARE YOU FROM DIXIE?" The Chicago Tribune isn't the only Tribune in the world, and though it may be the world's greatest newspaper, the world's greatest Tribune is the St. Lucie County Tribune, published in St. Lucie county, Florida.

Fort Pierce, Fla., is in St. Lucie county. And I know that St. Lucie county's Tribune is great, because it appreciates me.

A week ago, a periodical came out with a story somebody wrote, with my name signed to it, about Florida. And this here St. Lucie County Tribune criticizes it as follows (in part):

"being written by (then) my name, which modestly prevents me using so often, the evidently possesses all the dyspeptic and disgruntled characteristics enumerated above."

"The article purports to chronicle the experiences of the author and his wife on a trip from Chicago to Palm Beach and return by way of Indian river boat line to Fort Pierce, thence back to Jacksonville and Chicago. The author, evidently to hide his own incompetency and exaggerate his misrepresentations, employs a miserable attempt at humorous style, and proceeds to vent his dyspeptic tendencies and gross ignorance of true conditions along the Florida east coast."

"As a truthful portrayal of the east coast, of its magnificent winter resorts and attractions, and of the experiences of its winter visitors, is an utter and contemptible failure. Just what could have been the motive of the editor of the Saturday Evening Post in publishing such junk in its columns is beyond understanding, although the motive of the author of the article is apparent on its face."

"Lardner is obviously the most fluent liar that ever visited Florida out of captivity. As proof of the assertion we quote the following paragraph, which purports to relate his experiences in Fort Pierce after landing from the steamer Constitution."

"We landed in Fort Pierce about six. It was only two or three blocks to the hotel, but when they laid out that part of town they overlooked some of the modern conveniences, including sidewalks. We staggered through the sand with our grips and suds had worked up a hunger by the time we reached Ye Inn."

"Any one who is at all acquainted with Fort Pierce knows that this alleged experience is an absolute fabrication. As a matter of fact, paved streets and concrete sidewalks lead from the dock to every hotel in the city, and it would have been impossible for the party to have waded through sand unless they had deliberately picked their course along the river shore and across vacant lots, and even then the possibility of such an experience would have been extremely doubtful."

"It is useless to say that such experiences and conditions are manufactured for the purpose of misrepresentation, unless the writer had mistakenly gone to a hotel in the colored portion of the city instead of stopping in the business section at a hotel for white people."

knowing that their representations were absolutely false and that where one person is dissatisfied and inclined to knock a thousand were delighted and enthusiastically sang its praises, it has not raised its voice in protest. The truth, simply told, is all that Florida wants. The story of its beauties, resources, and opportunities, truthfully and simply portrayed, has brought thousands of enthusiastic visitors to its shores in the past and will bring countless thousands more in the future."

"It is time that some definite, concerted, and determined action was being taken by the civic and commercial organizations of Florida to stop such abuse or to counteract its impressions among those who are ignorant of true conditions."

After reading which we could only be grateful that the editor of the St. Lucie County Tribune overlooked our habit of taking heroin and beating our children with a coupling pin.
